

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0039] Wear-detection sensor has a body of electrically insulating material with an opening through which a flowable substance can pass, and one or more electrical conductors surrounding the opening
5 and adapted to undergo a discernable change in conductivity as the insulating material is worn away by the flowable substance.